The Rebellion.

The elements of dissolution which entered into and became a prominent part of the rebellion, are working out their natural results. The great argument in favor of secession was, that a State was absolutely sovereign, and could go from the Union, or any union with other States, at pleasure, and there was no power in a general government to prevent such secession.

Certainly a more fatal doctrine upon which to found a nationality was never conceived by men. Insanity itself could conjure up from the regions of madness no system more thoroughly inwrought with the seeds of dissolution and anarchy.

That American citizens should advance such a theory of government is one of the strangest things in the history of an intelligent people. Had the despots of the old world, in their mad envy, and actuated by fear of the example of the Republic, set such a dogma on foot we can well see the propriety of such a move on their part; it would simply be an effort to destroy a hated rival, whose power was feared and dreaded, by causing internal dissensions and broils, and a semi-anarcy which must forever entail a system of warfare among a people thus set at variance. State with State. This would be na tural enough as the contrivance of a bitter enemy, seeking to destroy a rival. But as a basis upon which to found an empire, it is folly and madness beyond comparison. It is like a healthy man taking arsenic into his system to im prove its tone. It is like a man building a house without pillars or foundaon. Or, like a jeweler attempting to spring taken out.

Already the rebellion is beginning to foot the bill. feel the folly of this suicidal theory of government. The central government at Richmond has been compelled to adopt more rigorous measures by far than any yet found necessary at Washington. 500,000 Majority for Lincoln!

Such is the glorious report which comes up from the 8th of November election in the States. ALL HAIL! Re bellion goes under. They have heard this clap of thunder at Richmon I.

Duty of Good Citizens.

Mr. Lincoln being re-elected, it now becomes the duty of every loyal citizen to render all the aid possible to his administration.

Mr. Crawford being elected Governor of Kansas, it is equally the duty of all loyal citizens to stand by him and help him to administer the affairs of the State with dignity and honor.

We do not belong to that class people who fight against government as soon as parties opposed to their views. come into power. The voice of the people fairly expressed, is the law of the land. At this time there are two parties in this country, loyalists and traitors. They who stand by the legally constituted and elected authorities belong to the former; they who do not comprise the latter.

We shall in the future, as in the past, criticise such acts as we believe to be wrong in both State and National administrations, believing that faults can only be corrected by being pointed out but we shall endeavor to assist in hold ing up the hands of both President and Governor in these perilous times.

Who Pays the Bill?

In remarks accompanying Gen. Deitzler's order, he says that the National he thinks the pay proper of the men. change. This is as it should be. Gen. Deitzler pays a high tribute to the militia, and compliments Gen. Curtis and others .-The praise is well bestowed and handsomely expressed, and but for the crowd ed condition of our columns we should publish the remarks in full.
